In response to EPA's General Notice Letter and 104(e) Request, Total and BP have performed a detailed review of the alleged Nexus Summary including our own preliminary investigation. We would like to present to EPA our preliminary findings, using maps and data that we have reviewed and collected. We think it's appropriate to review this information at EPA's earliest convenience, as the data could also inform the resolution of some of the pending issues Total raised in its January 8, 2018 letter to the agency concerning the above-referenced letter/request.

We believe this type of a meeting would be most valuable if held in-person, but could also arrange for a video conference or net meeting. I happen to already have a meeting with other EPA folks in Dallas on the morning of January 30th, if you and other appropriate agency personnel would be available on January 29th or the afternoon of January 30th, my counterpart at BP (copied) may be available at those times as well. Past that, it appears that February 8th and 9th are also available dates for both of us. Please let us know your availability and do not hesitate to reach out with any questions.
